

Xanesti Technology Services, LLC will contribute to the success of business, military and government civilian leadership by delivering the right information technology solution the first time. Solutions will be fully secure and make objectively measurable contributions to the execution of the business plan or mission of the organization.

Cybersecurity is not about technology; it is about people – and how we depend on technology to deliver value to fulfill our mission responsibilities.

How We Get to 'Yes'

Operations: By ensuring we understand your concept of operations, we will ensure security controls are implemented in a way which will not unduly impede your ability to operate successfully and securely.

Risk Acceptance: The decision to mitigate or accept risks will be supported by communicating risks clearly and without tech-speak. Where “best practices” cannot be implemented due to operational constraints, we will help you develop compensating controls which will control the same risks in an operationally sound manner.

Technical Implementation: By understanding your operational environment and communicating risks clearly, we will ensure you have the right technical tools to enable your people to maintain continuous authorization without creating operational burdens.
